

HOYT IS FORCED DOWN, UNHARMED; PLANE WRECKED

Message States Pilot Landed at Fairmont; No Details Are Given

RETURNING FROM NOME

Planned to Reach Edmonton Last Night; Battled Severe Storms

EDMONTON, ALBERTA, CANADA, July 22.—(INS)—Captain Ross G. Hoyt, United States Army pilot, was forced down at Fairmont, British Columbia, on his return flight from Nome, Alaska, to New York, according to word received here early today.

The plane was completely wrecked, the message stated, but the pilot was not injured. No details were given.

Fairmont is about 250 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Capt. Hoyt left White Horse, Yukon territory, yesterday morning at eleven o'clock and had planned to reach Edmonton last night. After battling rain, fog and head winds on the last leg of his flight to Nome, he had been favored by a stiff tail wind on the return journey.

Hoyt had stopped at Fairbanks, Alaska, late Saturday night, on the return trip somewhat exhausted by his battle with the elements. He had expected to reach New York early this afternoon after stopping at Edmonton and Minneapolis.

The intrepid aviator negotiated the 500-mile hop from Fairbanks to White Horse in safety, but came to grief on the last part of the 1,100-mile jump from White Horse to Edmonton, the longest hop of the flight.

LAMBERT FIELD, ST. LOUIS, July 22.—(INS)—"The St. Louis Robin," endurance monoplane engaged in testing the air-cooled Challenger engine and incidentally bent upon breaking the world record for endurance flights, began its tenth day and 217th hour in the air at 7:17 this morning.

The plane took off at 7:17 a. m. a week ago last Saturday and has been favored by excellent weather conditions.

"The Missouri Robin," sister ship of the "St. Louis Robin," has also exhibited tenacious cloud clinging tendencies and was to start its sixth day and 121st hour in the air at 10:31 this morning.

Both planes were refueled this morning.

Kills Father With His Gun

Outthrusting the wildest fiction is the story of Catherine Crawford, right, restored to the arms of her mother after her unflinching narrative of how her quivering fingers pressed the trigger of the revolver with which she killed her father, George H. Crawford, left, in their Keyport, N. J., home, above. According to her story, the father had ordered her to his room and, after locking the door, his actions frightened her. She grabbed the pistol she saw on the dresser, thinking to stop him but as he advanced she fired. After hearing her story Prosecutor Quinn indicated he would not ask for an indictment.

TULLYTOWN LOSES TO BRISTOL; SCORE, 3 TO 2

Triple, With Three On Bases, By McGerr, Does The Trick

GAME WAS INTERESTING

(By T. M. Juno)
A triple with three on base by "Bill" McGerr enabled Bristol A. A. to defeat Tullytown Paterson Parchment Paper Company by the score of 3 to 2 on Sullivan's field last evening.

Up until the final frame, the A. A. was unable to solve the slants of "Angie" Russo. Then the trouble began. Deitrich started it with a single. David followed with another. Russo then lost control and passed M. Cochrane. J. Fine struck out for the first out. McGerr was then elected to bat for Hibbs. With two strikes the pinch-hitter hit a high and wide bat to right field good for three bags, and scoring the three runners.

The battle was an old fashioned hurling duel between "Ballet Joe" Kohler and "Angie" Russo. Both were pitching their best and pleased the fans who gathered to form one of the largest crowds this season. In nine torrid innings of baseball, Kohler gave up but two hits and fanned twelve batters. His wildness did no harm. Russo did equally as well as Kohler, allowing but five hits, fanning eight, and passing but one hitter. Three of the A. A.'s hits came in the last frame. Eddie Roe and Gene Dugan were the fielding flashes of the game. Although both had an error charged against them they came through in the pinches.

Tullytown scored its first run in the third. Russo was safe on an error and took rapid strides to the plate on Roe's two-base hit to left center.

In the sixth, Afterbach singled, went to second on a wild pitch, and scored on two errors.

FINDING "SECOND EDISON" BIG JOB AHEAD OF FAMOUS MEN COMMITTEE

By James L. Kugelhaas

NEW YORK, July 22.—Finding a boy from that great army of bright American boys, one who might ultimately become "a second Edison" is, of course, an exceedingly difficult task.

Even Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor himself, probably would admit that fact if he were pinned down to an answer. For few men in all history have given themselves so unreservedly to humanity or have accomplished things of such benefit to humanity.

At any rate an attempt to find such a boy is to be made late this month. Five prominent Americans—Henry Ford, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, George Eastman, Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dr. Lewis Perry, headmaster of Phillips Exeter Academy, have consented to act as an advisory committee to assist Mr. Edison in selecting from 49 boys, each representing a state in the Union, the one showing the greatest promise of following in the footsteps of "the wizard of electricity."

Draw Questionnaire
The committee, of which Dr. Stratton is the chairman, will assist Mr. Edison in drawing up his questionnaire and then in aiding him in marking the papers after the boys have taken the examination. The boys will come to West Orange, N. J., Mr. Edison's home, to take part in the selection. The state nominees will reach West Orange on July 30 and be there for four days, the examinations taking place the third day.

Whoever the committee selects as the winner will receive the Thomas A. Edison scholarship and may attend the college of his own selection to further his thirst for scientific knowledge.

This writer is convinced, after having visited West Orange and talked to Charles Edison, president of the Edison Company there, and son of the noted inventor, as well as having interviewed Mr. Edison himself in Florida early this year, that one of the big ideas in the back of Mr. Edison's head when he made the offer to the American boys was to stimulate interest in science just as much as it was to find "a second Edison." The latter assignment is a big order, and no one knows it better than the hard-working inventor himself.

Attract Young Men
But if, by any means of a contest of this character, he can cause boys to manifest a deep interest in science, he will consider the time and effort well spent. It is quite likely that the contest will have just as much effect in attracting the mind of young America to science as for example the Olympic games do toward swerving the youthful mind toward the field of sports.

Mr. Edison's remarkable career is

YERKES ESTATE WILL TOTAL OVER $400,000

Wealth to Be Distributed Among Relatives, According to Will of Decedent

HOME IS TO BE SOLD

DOYLESTOWN, July 22.—An estate of $415,000 is bequeathed to nieces and nephews in the will of Elizabeth D. Yerkes, widow of Dr. Hutchinson P. Yerkes, of this borough, who died at her home here a week ago. The will has been probated in the office of the Register of Wills. Mrs. Yerkes was one of the borough's wealthiest women.

J. Purdy Weiss, of this borough, and the Doylestown Trust Company, are named executors of the will dated January 27, 1927. The will directs that the Yerkes home on East State street shall be sold at private sale, and that household goods and certain pieces of personal property shall be sold by the executors at private sale at which no one but the residuary legatees named in the will shall be present.

The estate is listed as $400,000 personal property and $15,000 real estate, house on East State street.

The following bequests are directed in the will: Robert P. Dager, Norrisstown, $10,000; Sarah Hobart, Troy, N. Y., $15,000; Mary Watt, Norrisstown, $15,000; Helen Wetter, Philadelphia, $15,000; Ella M. Yerkes, Philadelphia, $10,000; Eliza Yerkes, Philadelphia, $10,000; Ada Coffman, Philadelphia, $10,000; Annie Reed, Newark, N. J., $10,000; Maria Redmond, Doylestown, $500.

A bequest of $15,000 in trust to the Doylestown Trust Company, the income of which is to be paid to Harrington Fitzgerald, Jr., is made. Upon the death of Mr. Fitzgerald, the principal is to be paid to his three sisters, Sarah Hobart, Mary Watt and Helen Wetter.

Two of the heirs, Lida Coffman and Annie Reed, being deceased, a codicil directs that the money revert back to the estate.

A bequest of $1,000 is made to the Doylestown Cemetery Company for the care of the Yerkes lot.

All the balance of the estate, is bequeathed share alike to Robert P. Dager, Sarah Hobart, Mary Watt, Helen Wetter, Harrington Fitzgerald, Jr., Ella M. Yerkes, Eliza Yerkes, Ada Coffman and Annie Kay, amounting to approximately $40,000 apiece.

Camden, N. J., July 22.—(INS)—More than 90 persons, mostly Philadelphians, were seized in raids on disorderly houses, saloons and road houses in Camden county during the week-end. Tired of seeing Pennsylvanians cross the Delaware to make "whoopie" in this State, because of the drive being waged against criminals in Philadelphia and its environs, county officials have been busy during the past three week-ends. Gloucester county authorities also raided three places in that county. A quantity of liquor was seized at each house raided.

CONGRESSMAN TO TOUR EUROPE AND SEE CONDITIONS

Henry W. Watson to Learn at First Hand Effects of Tariff Discussion

LEAVES HERE THIS WEEK

Wants to Know What Russia and Other Countries Are Doing

Congressman Henry W. Watson of this congressional district is going abroad to make a first hand investigation of industrial conditions in Europe. Congressman Watson wants to ascertain the true conditions of trade relationship between a group of European countries, including Russia, and the effect the present tariff revision discussion is having upon these connections.

Congressman Watson is one of the two Pennsylvania Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. Watson was actively in charge of several of the schedules in the new bill when the House Committee framed the revision now pending in the Senate Finance Committee. He will be accompanied on his European tour by Mrs. Watson and will sail on the Leviathan this week to return to this country late in September.

A staunch defender of the rates imposed in the Hawley measure, Mr. Watson conferred with officials of the State Department regarding admission of foreigners at Russian ports and also with Julius Kline, head of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce of the Department of Commerce on Foreign Trade Statistics. He will visit England, France, Russia, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Although he discussed with State Department officials the possibility of war between Russia and China. Mr. Watson refused to make any comment on that subject. He said he did not anticipate any difficulty in entering Russia. He asserted that economic conditions in Europe had reached the stage where the protective tariff system for the United States must be maintained if this country is to hold its commercial and industrial supremacy. Mr. Watson referred to the agitation for reduced rates in the Senate tariff bill and continued:

"The House tariff bill is criticised in foreign countries, where, since the war, new conditions have arisen. American capital amounting to twenty billions has been invested in the industries and securities of those countries. American machinery is being installed throughout Europe where labor is paid one-fourth less than in the United States with mass production. Markets must be found and as Americans are the greatest and most extravagant consumers the United States has become the goal.

"We are receiving a large revenue from importations and we need it to meet our debts of eighteen billions. Our industries from which income taxes are collected must be prosperous. There can be no hope for real Federal tax reduction if our factories are closed with foreign commodities burdening the shelves of the American shop-keepers. The free list opens the door wide for importations.

"Can the farmer complain when agricultural implements, animals for breeding purposes, binding twine for repairs and many other commodities which his occupation demands are placed on the free list? Can he complain when importations of cattle, sheep, lambs, goats and all other animals of the farm, may be limited by a protective tariff? Can he complain when the tariff is increased on milk from two and one-half to five cents per gallon, cream from twenty to forty-eight cents per gallon, butter from eight to fourteen cents per pound, eggs from eight to ten cents per dozen, and in fact increased duties on all other farm products?

"If the public would analyze the House tariff bill with unbiased judgment and careful thought there would be less criticism of it. It was to be expected that foreign nations would oppose the bill, but it should not follow that the United States should comply with their wishes by closing our industries and filling our homes with unemployed labor. Commercial reprisals are not popular in this age and they will not be effective. American industries and labor must be protected by an adequate tariff system."

NATION'S BEST INVESTMENT

There is no nation without its national problems. Whether the new nation or the old has greater problems to face is a much debated question. There is no doubt that all of the more ancient countries of the world now have their share of troubles but it is also true that the United States, one of the youngest of nations, has its full share of cares.

Not the least of the problems of this country is its 2,941,274 miles of highways. This vast and intricate system of roads is indispensable to the development and economic needs of the nation, but its maintenance and improvement involves billions of dollars which must come from the people.

It has only been in recent years that the United States undertook the herculean task of improving its highways. There are still those states without modern roads and in no state have the systems of improved highways been completed. Great strides have been made in the last two decades, but the job is only begun.

Universal use of the automobile and motor truck in transportation has taken the lesson of good roads into every section of the country no matter how isolated. Where the railroad goes the permanent highway is necessary as an auxiliary. Where there are no railroads the hard-surface road must serve the purpose of the railroad.

The nation must complete the improvement of its highway system regardless of the cost. The only question is how soon will the last mile be under construction.

NO STEADFAST RULE

A critic once said that "an educated poet is almost always a bad poet; that scholarship produces critics, not creators, and encourages pedantry rather than passion." The facts are convincing that the author of the criticism was a poor judge of good poetry.

Among the university poets were Spencer, Marlowe, Milton, Dryden, Donne, Gray, Goldsmith, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Scott, Byron, Shelley, Tennyson and Swinburne. Among the non-university poets were Shakespeare, Pope, Cowper, Burns, Blake, Keats and Browning.

It is evident, therefore, that university training is not essential to poetry. But the fact that such poets as Pope and Keats never attended a university does not prove them uneducated. Mr. G. K. Chatterton describes Browning as "the most educated man that ever lived," but Browning never attended an institution of higher learning.

The man who said "an educated poet is almost always a bad poet" is no more in error than the fellows who believe that one must go to college to be educated and that every college man is an educated man.

SYNOPSIS
It is Saturday night in Milbank, N. J. "Welcome Home," a musical comedy trying out on the road, is stranded. Willie Durant, the financial backer, is friendly with Nita French, the star, but, strangely enough, refuses to put up any more money. Behind Nita's back he is attentive to Kitty, the cloak room girl who aspires to the stage, and has induced her father, "Dad" Malone, stage doorman, and Jimmy, head usher, her sweetheart, to invest all their savings in the show. Jimmy and Kitty are discussing the situation.
CHAPTER I—Continued
"I know it's good," the girl assured him, "or Dad wouldn't have put the money in it. He's even got the house mortgaged."
Jimmy groaned, "But still, your Dad ought to know something about shows."
"Well, he's taught me everything I know about show business. Dad was a grand actor in his time. Why, he used to have one song that brought down the house every night. If he hadn't had that accident—"
"Sure," the usher agreed sympathetically. "Well, if ever get on

where you work
Many people employed in Bristol are commuting to and from their work each day. This means an unnecessary expense and a waste of time. They must leave home earlier and return later than if they lived in the town where they are employed. They have less time for pleasure and less time to spend with their families than if they resided here.

Why commute?
Bristol as a place of residence offers every opportunity to be found in a large city. There are paved streets, sanitary sewers, good schools and churches of every denomination; periodic collection of ashes and garbage, police protection and ample space for outdoor recreation.

Housing is adequate
Housing facilities are adequate to meet the needs of all. There are dwellings here which will meet the needs of almost every family. Big six room houses with all modern conveniences including front porches and rear yards. They rent as low as $20 per month, and are comparable in type to those in the larger cities renting for nearly twice the amount.

You're a part of the community
If you live in Bristol you are a part of the community. You are not lost in the crowds of a great city where often times your next door neighbor doesn't know you. Live in Bristol and participate in its affairs and you will find life much more worth the living.

the stage don't go falling down any circular staircase."
"If I ever get on the stage! If the ghost doesn't walk tonight it looks like the end of everything."
"Now, don't worry, they'll pay salaries all right," Jimmy encouraged. "Dad'll have to put up the money. He can't walk out at this stage of the game."
"It's been done before."
"Hey, Jimmy, back to work, back to work," Joe, the detective, strolled slowly past eyeing the couple morosely.
Jimmy grinned. "He's a wet blanket," he turned to Kitty. "I never saw such a mug to crab."
"Say, that flatfoot ought to be back on the force. No, I wouldn't wish him on the force; it would be an insult to too many good Irishmen. Coats checked, sir!"
Once more Kitty returned to her work with added vigor. The last minute entrants were crowding the aisles. The ushers picked up their flashlights from behind the back row seats preparatory to lights down and curtain up. Jimmy scurried to his post and began his series of directions, but his mind was far from his work. Jimmy was worried. Here "Dad" Malone had gone and sunk everything in this show, he was thinking, and suppose it didn't turn out all right.
Nor was Kitty free from anxiety. The show was good. She had no doubts about that, but whether it would pull through this try-out was something else again. There were money troubles backstage, she knew, and yet she felt certain that if once the show ever reached Broadway it would be good for a summer run. But Durant. Was he going to put up the money in case there wasn't enough in the box-office? Tonight would tell the story. She didn't like Durant. She didn't like the way he looked at her, his air of familiarity when other people weren't looking.
"Has Durant come in yet?" It was Jimmy back at Kitty's side again.
"I didn't see him. He's probably around the box-office. Anyway, I wouldn't worry, Jimmy. Durant's not going to let this show down. He thinks too much of Nita French."
"Yes, and I notice he seems to think about some other people I could mention," the boy frowned.
Kitty's heart jumped violently. She had wondered whether he had taken notice of the backer's attentions to her. "Why, what do you mean, Jimmy?"
"Well, he seems to be a lot interested in you."
"Oh, don't be silly, Jimmy," Kit-

STRAFFE WILL FIGHT
AFTER A YEAR'S REST

The smell of the resin and the sound of the bell is again calling back one of Bristol's sensations in none other than Johnny ("Kid") Straffe, Bristol's fighting sheik.

After over a year's lay-off, Straffe will make his first appearance in Hoboken, N. J., his opponent being Benny Husick, of New York, in a six-round semi-wind-up.

Husick, who out of 49 fights has won 39 bouts, will try to add the local boy to his string of victories. But Straffe has enough confidence in himself that he will try and add Benny to his string of victories. In 27 fights, Straffe has scored 24 wins, with 14 knock-outs.

Straffe has been training hard every night, and has boxed two rounds every night with "Kid" Firpo, "Kid" Tullio and two other big boys, who are all trying to put Straffe into shape for the fight that will mean a lot to the "Kid," and four rounds of skipping rope, adding road work and shadow boxing.

Johnny will leave Tuesday for Jersey City where he will stay until Wednesday with his manager, Sammy Nite, of Troy, N. Y., who thinks Straffe can make good.

Mrs. Paul Lodge and daughter, Harriet, spent Wednesday as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Blinn, of Trenton. Mr. Paul Lodge was a dinner guest of the Blinn's.

Mrs. Albert R. Randall, Mrs. T. Elias Paul, Miss Lillie Wilson, Marjane Kramer and Martha Paul attended the Wednesday matinee at Keith's Capitol Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rubart, of Hammonton, were Wednesday guests of Mrs. Rubart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell. Several of Mrs. Rubart's friends heard she was in town and gathered a crowd from the surrounding community to surprise the bride and groom. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present. Refreshments of cream and cake were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell. Guessing games were played. The guests departed at a very late hour wishing Mr. and Mrs. Rubart much happiness.

Members and friends of the Ladies' Aid of the Emilie M. E. Church had a very enjoyable day Thursday along the Delaware at Edgely. Games were played and bathing enjoyed. Mrs. Leo L. Lynn, of Edgely, kindly furnishing one of her rooms for a bath house.

TULLYTOWN

Michael Birchell, of Brown street, is visiting with relatives in Delaware. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Baker and son and Mrs. Norton, of Brown street, were recent visitors in Atlantic City, N. J.

"ALMOST LIKE
LADY OF KONJOLA

"I Recommend This New Medicine Every Chance I Get,"
She Says, Thankful for the Relief it Brought Her

MRS. BERTHA HARVEY

"I was troubled with a complication of ailments for some time," said Mrs. Bertha Harvey, Linesville, Penna. "My food did not digest as it should and I suffered from gas and bloating after every meal. Rheumatism and neuritis developed, and added their burden of pain and misery."

"After taking but three bottles of Konjola the stomach trouble disappeared. The neuritis disappeared as if by magic, and the rheumatism is so much relieved that I know it will soon leave me entirely. I recommend this new medicine every chance I get, because it has merit."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

HOLLYWOOD MOVIE FOLKS DIVIDED

ON W HETHER IT PAYS TO BE FAT

By Frederic A. Chase
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—The movie colony has not yet settled the weight problem. The battle rages unceasingly.

Monte Brice, Pathe comedy supervisor, definitely came out for well-rounded, good humored folks today. While he does not favor prodigious weights, Brice praises stout people for their good humor, perhaps because they laugh the most at his comedies. "Laugh and grow fat," advises Brice. "Those who grow stout are usually happy; or, in other words, fat people usually laugh a great deal.

"This is not hard to understand. Nothing causes indigestion and upset nervous conditions so rapidly as bad humor. Anger generates poison through the system. Nervous people burn their energy out in unnecessary exertion, and do not allow fat to form because of their incessant action.

"The good humored person takes life more gently. He doesn't burn himself out with false stimulus. Quiet, easy-going people usually eat slowly, and consequently their food is easily assimilated.

Brice deprecates styles that quarrel with nature.

"Women are undermining their health by egg and tomato diets, taking so much acidity into their systems. A large life insurance company recently issued warnings to the feminine sex that their health is in danger from the fad for dieting. Personally, I see nothing attractive in the flat chested, thin legged girl of today," he concludes.

And anyway, fat people like comedies.

George Fitzmaurice, film director, fears the films are running too much to close-ups, to inaction. "Dialogue is being overdone," he suggests. "There is no reason for discarding the fine art of pantomime, just because the screen has gone talkie."

"It is annoying to see a dialogue close-up, and then jump back to an off-screen character to get his reaction in movement and speech," the director says. "The screen should be filled with speaking players, so as to get a better illusion of reality. The ear never hears anything in close-ups; nor does the eye see immense heads."

Fitzmaurice vows that in his next production action and movement will be paramount, and dialogue secondary.

The role of a doctor as played by Clive Brook in "Interference" pleased Dr. H. M. Hall, president of the West Virginia State Medical Association, so greatly that he relayed his approbation in a letter recently turned over to Brook.

The doctor also commended Robert Edeson's characterization of a medical man in "The Doctor's Secret."

It took the movies some years to get rid of the Van Dyke beard nonsense, the doctor declares, and now it appears that the doctor of the screen has at last become a real doctor, instead of a worried old brother toying with stethoscopes and thermometers. Needless to say, the change is to the great delight of the medical profession.

"The medical profession really owes a debt of gratitude to the actors, directors and makers of these two pictures," Doctor Hall said in closing his letter. "They picture on the screen the type of mellow, rounded out, season man every doctor would like to be. The two types depicted by the two actors in these movie dramas would be an inspiration to any tyro."

TULLYTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tremble, of Coatesville, have been visiting at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, of Brown street.

Lester Morgan, of Main street, has accepted a position with the Charles Warner Company.

ALCOHOL—ALLY OF DEATH

Dr. George W. Webster, of Chicago, president of the Illinois State Board of Health, in an address before the National Scientific and Medical Conference at Washington, March 17-18, 1909, presented a suggestive paper on the subject "Alcohol and Public Health," in which he emphasized the fundamental facts regarding the alcohol question which in his judgment should base all thought and agitation on the question:

"The alcoholic problem is more important than tuberculosis because it costs more lives and money."

"It costs the United States in direct money loss over two billion dollars."

"It causes directly and indirectly at least 10 per cent of all deaths in the United States."

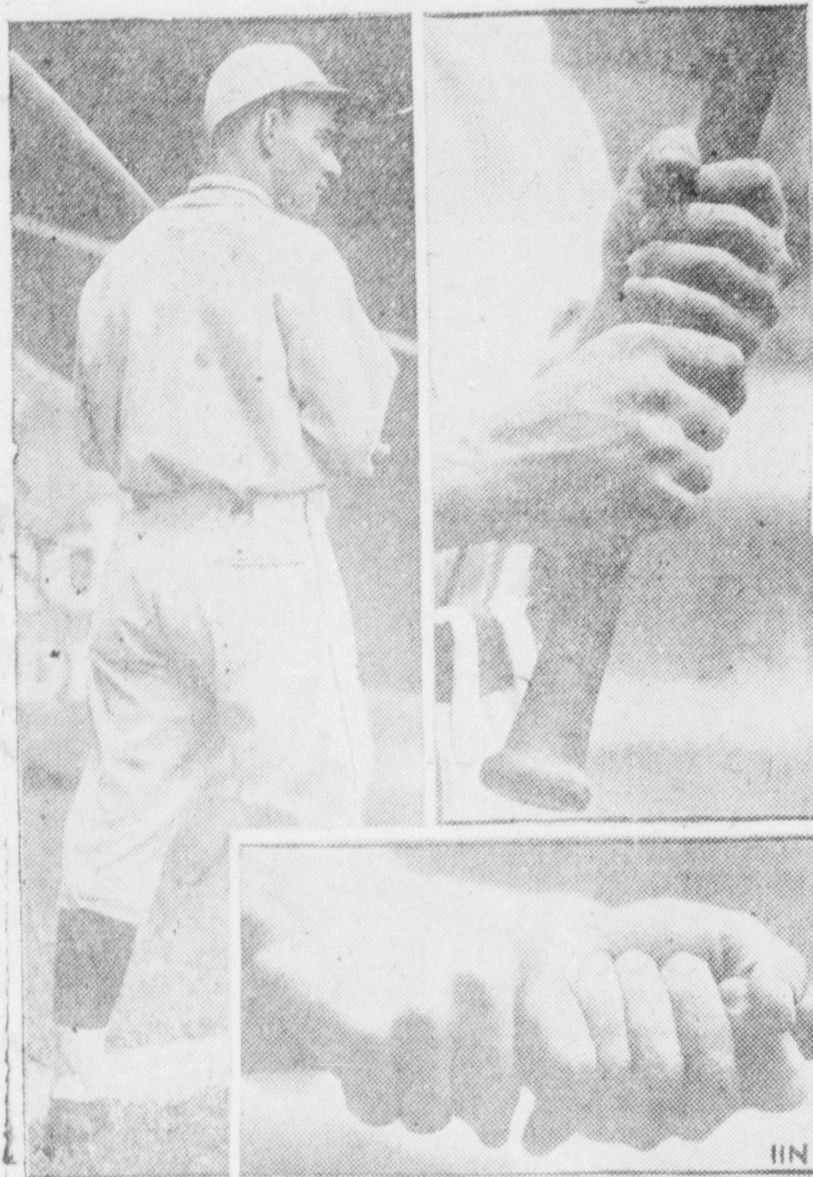

"It predisposes to infection, destroys acquired immunity, prevents the occurrence of artificial immunity, lowers vitality and increases mortality in all diseases and in surgical operations."

"It lessens the power of individual to resist the injurious influences of extreme heat and cold."

"It causes deterioration of the quality of mental work."

"It diminishes the power to withstand fatigue and lessens the efficiency of the individual."

"It should always be classified as a poison and never as a food or stimulant."—(Adv.)

"Not Bashful" Says Mel Ott
To Many Accusations

Mel Ott, personable young Giants home-run hitter, admits he likes girls and has as many dates as other young men and denies he's bashful. Base-ball, though, is both his business and hobby. He's shown above as he stands at the plate, gracefully and formidably waiting to smash his rival's pitched ball over the fence for another home run. Above, right, is a close-up showing his strong hands gripping the bat, and below, another view showing him gripping the bat when he goes through his famous natural swing.
